CAST AWAY ON A TURTLE. Captain John O. Holmes, who recently arrived in this city from Valparaiso, is responsible for the following striking narrative, which he vows is as "true as steel:" The captain had been cruising among the Society Islands. when, putting into a small cove one day for water, a number of natives, as usual, came on board to trade. Among them was a stout, comely maiden of eighteen, to whom the mate took a great fancy. She was the daughter of a chief, and reciprocating the mate's affection the twain were married, a grand feast honoring the occasion. Wi-wi was the name of the bride, signifying in the language of her country, "Big Fish," or to interpret more particularly, "Great Swimmer," she having an extended notoriety as an expert in the art of swimming. Having married the mate she took up her quarters on the ship, usuch to the dislike of the captain, who, sailor like, felt the unseemliness of having a woman aboard. However, the vessel left the island and stood for Tahiti, where she leaded with oranges and bore thence for Valpar-2180. On the voyage this incident occurred : Wi wi, the mate's wile, was one evening performing her ablutions year the bows. There was a moderate sea running; not, however, enough to incommode the turtles, which could be seen floating all round the ship. Some of these were of very large size and were known as the green turtle. It happened, while the fair islander was so engaged, that the ship toppled her bow under and picked up a sea, which passing over, carried Wi-Wi with it far to leeward. The crew were at supper, but the man at the wheel saw Wi-Wi as she went over, and shouted "man overboard." At this cry, so terrible on shipboard, the crew rushed on deck; the ship was brought to, and a whale-boat lowered. By this time Wi Wi had drifted

some distance to leeward, and nightfall made the task of rescuing her one of extreme difficulty. But the mate was in the boat, and though half-crazed at the mishap which had betallen his dusky wife, resolved to make every effort to save her. So he urged his men with telling earnestness. They, too, shared his spirit and pulled away on their dangerous But night fell and no sign of the unfortunate Wi Wi was seen. The men gave her up as lost, but the mate was still hopeful. "Wi-Wi is a fish," said he, "and one night at sea will not burt her. We will lay by till morning." So they lay in the boat that night shouting, but bearing no respone. In the morning the mate saw a dark object on the top of a surge a long way off. "There is something over there," said he; "give way for it." "It's only a turtle," answered the men. "Mever mind," replied the mate, "give way." They gave way, and after a hard pull, the sea having riseo, reached the object. It was an immense tur-tle, and on the back thereof sat Wi-Wi. She bailed the boat's crew with a cry of joy, and plunging into the sea, swam to the boat. The turtle was then secured and towed to the ship, where Wi-Wi was received with three cheers and a tiger. A glass of brandy stimulated her and made her loquacious. She told the story of her going overboard, how, being bruised by striking against the rail, she could not reach the ship by swimming, but, floating at the mercy of the sea, was at length thrown on the back of the tuttle, which was complacently oscillating on the surface of the water. "But for this singular assistance," said the captain, "Wi-Wi must have perished, and it is to be regretted," he added in a choking voice, "that the creature which had so providentially saved the life of a human being should have subsequently been utilized in the form of turtle soup." - San Francisco Bulletin.

"CLAWING OFF."

Yesterday, as a policeman was strolling past a house on Fort street East, a woman, a year or two over forty, having her sleeves rolled up and her hands covered with flour, ran out to the gate and called to him. "It's a little delicate," she said as she leaned over the gate and tried to blush, "but I'm a person that knows my rights, and besides, I'm ail alone in the world at d no one to advise "Speake your mind freely, madam," replied the officer, as he tapped on the pockets with his batton. "You know all about the law, don't you?"

she inquired. "Everything, madam I Can tell you how to go to work in an admiralty case, and bring you from that down through divorce, backruptey arsen, burglary, false pretenses, hitching a horse to a shade tree and getting intoxicated.

"It's a little delicate," she softly said as she rubbed the flour off her hands, "but as I said before, I'm all alone.'

"Trust me, madam-repose confidence in me," he replied, swelling out his chest.

"Well, s'posen you were a widow? "Yes, madam.

"And s'posen one of the boarders gave you a breastpin? "I see madam."

"And s'posen he smiled at you, and sent you poetry, and asked you to ride out on Sunday: and the neighbors whispered around that you were engaged?" "Proceed madam -I congratulate you." "No, you musu't; for s' posen, after all this, he suddenly began to claw off, and didn't smile on you any more, and didn't praise your cooking, and took another woman to the min-

"Ah, the traitor! Perhaps he has transferred his affections to some one else.

That's what I think. I know it's a little delicate, but I'm all alone in the world, you see, and I want to know if there isn't a law to bear on him. It isn't right to go and encourage a lone woman like me and then claw off.

"He ought to be roasted alive, he had !" "I don't know as I'd want him arrested, but I'd like to have you call on him and make threats. Tell him he's liable to State prison for clawing off this way. I tell you it's a pretty serious thing to go and encourage a woman of my age and then skulk around behind the hencoop all of a sudden. Isn't there a law?"

"Less see?" I hardly think there is." "Well you can call on him. Take him alonelook fierce -have your handcuffs in sight. Just tell him that you know all about it, and that I'm good hearted, pleasant, rich, and that he better be careful how he prances around, or he'll think a tornado struck him." The officer promised, and she rubbed a coud of flour off her hands and ran up the path with a light heart .-- Detroit Free Press.

The symptons of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Some-times the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general costive, sometimes alternating with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sen-sation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often complaing of weakness, debility, and low spirits. Sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the liver is generally the organ most in-

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regu lated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palaittein of the heart depression of suiting or the pitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from the proof and great from the great from the proof and grea of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.
